To whomever it may concern

Dear Sir or Madam

Reference for Cox+Allen

My experience of this firm of contractors reaches back several years and their regular inclusion in tender short lists for a variety of work speaks volumes. Invariably they prove competitive and when successful finish on time and on budget. Their recent completion of significant extensions to the Ruskin Museum, Coniston that will soon feature Donald Campbell's Bluebird, was typical and the client was satisfied, which is so seldom the case these days.

With a capable contracts manager more interested in problem solving than problem creating and a sensible estimating department the firm should continue to prosper. Fine workmanship can be displayed but as with any firm so much depends upon the site manager selected.

Large or small projects in virtually any area would be tackled by this friendly outfit. I have little hesitation in providing a general reference.

Yours sincerely
